Email Sent to Probate Authorities on June 1, 2023

The following pages contain a formal email from the Petitioner, Jaden Riley, on June 1, 2023, to key Travis County Probate Court members and the probate attorneys representing Lindsey Bloch. In this email, titled “Illegal Probate Activity Re: June Bloch C-1-PB-23-000919,” the Petitioner raised concerns about probate fraud, elder abuse, and undue influence. The email also provided preliminary evidence of the Decedent’s cognitive decline, suspicious financial transactions, and familial ties with the Decedent to support the Petitioner’s standing to contest the probated will.

June 1, 2023, at 6:00 PM, I emailed key members of the Travis County Probate Court and Lindsey Bloch’s probate attorneys a message with the subject line “Illegal Probate Activity Re: June Bloch C-1-PB-23-000919,” from my email address, jaden@jadenriley.com.

- The email provided extensive photographic evidence and documentation demonstrating my lifelong close relationship with the Decedent, including:
- A detailed statement outlining my familial connection to the Decedent and her role as a maternal figure in my life.
- Links to supporting materials such as photographic evidence, public records, and text messages demonstrating our shared family history, frequent interactions, and significant life events we attended together.
- A summary of the Decedent’s caregiving involvement during my adult years, including:
- Caring for me at her home after my knee surgery, during which time we discussed her will and her statement that Lindsey and I were both her beneficiaries and that Lindsey was named as Executor.
- Picking me up from my apartment and taking me to multiple doctors when I was severely anemic and could barely stay conscious. She stayed with me at the hospital through emergency surgery and two blood transfusions, during which time she again confirmed that Lindsey and I were both her beneficiaries.
- The email further raised concerns about elder abuse, undue influence, and probate fraud. It included specific references to suspicious asset transfers, significant modifications to the Decedent’s will, and other questionable actions by Lindsey Bloch and her husband, Jonathan Poritsky.

1. STATEMENT OF FAMILY, FAMILIAL RELATIONS, AND FAMILY CLOSENESS

My name is Jaden Alexandra Riley (age 46). I am June Bloch's only niece and Lindsey Bloch's only first cousin. I was born as and am formerly known as Adrienne Wendy Jaffe. I legally changed my first, middle, and last names in 16-MAY-2014 through the Texas Travis County Court System, case D-1-FM-14-002822, as part of my healing process in which I chose to distance myself from my parents and other family members with whom I experienced physical abuse, rather intense emotional abuse, and sexual abuse including child molestation, child rape, and child sex trafficking.

Click here to view the Travis County Court Order for my legal name change.

In distancing myself from the members of my family who were party to those abuses, I chose to spend time with, talk to, celebrate with, show affection toward, confide in, and only call my Aunt June and first Cousin Lindsey (age 42) "family."

I have lived in Austin for 43 years. June Bloch, her ex-husband Jeff Bloch, my mother Gail Bloch, and I moved from Pennsylvania to Austin, Texas, in the late '70s. June has been a part of my life since I was born, even in the 70s when we both lived in Pennsylvania. Lindsey was born and raised in Austin, and except for Lindsey and my college years, we (June, Lindsey, and I) have lived within a 5-10 minute drive from one other.

Just as I am Lindsey's only first cousin, she is also my only first cousin – all of our family branches are minimally populated. To my knowledge, June Bloch has only two surviving family members, (1) her daughter, Lindsey Bloch, and (2) me, Jaden Riley, her only niece. Jonathan Poritsky, Lindsey Bloch's husband since 2017, is on the in-law side of June's surviving family.

I have known my Aunt June for my entire 46 years, and she has been an active part of my life for the entirety of that time. I have known Lindsey since birth, and we have been part of one another's life since that day. Lindsey and I spent a lot of time together as children, and as young adults, we would sometimes meet downtown on the weekends for drinks. I was with June and Lindsey at Jeffrey Bloch's (June's ex-husband and Lindsey's father's house the day her dad died suddenly and unexpectedly. And recently, I tried my best to support my cousin and help her work through the grief of losing her mother.

Click here to view the text conversations between Lindsey and myself that began on 18-MAR-2023, the afternoon after her mother passed away.

June, Lindsey, and I live close enough that we shop at the same H-E-B and have run into one another shopping on multiple occasions over the years. Lindsey and I grew up together, with June at our side. We visited one another, had family outings, celebrated holidays, and attended high school and college graduations, funerals, and weddings together. I recuperated from my last knee surgery at June's house, in the living room, in front of the television, on the sofa bed. June cared for me, fed me, picked up my medications, spent a lot of time with me, and helped me be as comfortable as possible while on my back for weeks, attached to a physical therapy machine designed to keep my knee moving 24/7.

June loved football, and sometimes I would go to her house to cook on the grill and watch football games with her. June saw how much I liked the grill and eventually bought me an electric grill. Our last family gatherings were in 2018, before the pandemic began to change everything and shut the world down. Every year for Thanksgiving June, Lindsey and I would meet at the Four Seasons for brunch or at other restaurants like Katz's on Sixth Street (before it closed). June, Lindsey, and I also usually spent one day of Hanukkah with one another every year. We would meet at either June's or Lindsey's house for dinner, to light the Hanukkah candles, and to exchange gifts. Lindsey would almost always cook homemade potato latkes and other wonderful dishes for us to eat.

June and Lindsey are my family. They have always been, and in 2010 when I began the process of fully acknowledging and coming to terms with the truth about my childhood abuses when I finally committed myself to the very long and painful process of healing from the trauma I experienced in my younger years, June and Lindsey became the only family I had. June has always been an ever-present mother figure in my life, and for the past thirteen years, she has been the only mother figure in my life. One evening I gathered my courage and asked June to meet me for dinner. During this dinner, I confided in my Aunt and told her about the abuses I endured as a child, abuses she never knew about. Just as June has always been a prominent mother figure in my life, Lindsey has always been the closest thing I have had to a sister, and whether she admits to it or not, it is the same for her. Jeff, June, and Lindsey are the closest and most cherished members of my family; they were my safe place. When I was with them, I knew nothing bad would happen to me. And, for the past thirteen years, June and Lindsey have been my only family.

For years, during our early adulthoods, there was a time when Lindsey would call and wake me up in the middle of the night, utterly distraught over her father's death. When moments like this happened, the person Lindsey trusted with her memories and emotional pain was me because aside from Lindsey, I am the only other person who knew, looked up to, and loved Lindsey's father, my Uncle Jeff, as a father figure. Lindsey knew I loved him this way because my father was an absentee junkie, and Jeff Bloch was a pure joy to many people in his life, nothing like my father. It was Lindsey's father who paid for my college education. Lindsey and I knew how wonderful Jeffrey Bloch was and how lucky we were to grow up with him. Lindsey seldom shows any vulnerability nor shares her emotions. Still, when she did, it would bring me closer to her, and I became very protective of my Cousin in her moments of vulnerability. I didn't want anyone to exploit her vulnerability when she thought about her father. His death was her deepest emotional pain, and I did not want anyone to ever use these things against her. I was also honored when my Cousin Lindsey trusted me to be by her side when things were hard for her. It's what people who love one another do. It's how members of a family support one another.

2. REASON FOR CONTACTING THE TRAVIS COUNTY PROBATE COURT

While I love my Cousin deeply, something substantial has happened. And, because of that change, our paths have now irrevocably diverged, for I believe that Lindsey Bloch, my first cousin, daughter to my recently deceased Aunt, June Bloch, and the executor of June Bloch's will, acted intentionally and with malice to commit multiple acts of fraud for personal financial gain.

I believe Lindsey Bloch, with the full knowledge and assistance of her husband, Jonathan Poritsky, employed illegal and abusive tactics, such as undue influence, on her elderly, dependant, physically frail, mentally incapacitated, and socially isolated 71-year-old mother, who suffered from multiple severe illnesses, including exhibiting signs of dementia years before her death to keep me from receiving an inheritance that I was told, by the deceased, my Aunt, June Bloch that I would be receiving. June expressed this to me before her physical and mental health eroded to the point where she required a caretaker's assistance. She discussed her end-of-life plans with me when she was independent and of sound mind. My Aunt, June Bloch, told me that I was in her will and that her daughter (Lindsey Bloch) and I were the beneficiaries of her estate.

3. STATEMENT OF JUNE BLOCH'S PHYSICAL AND MENTAL HEALTH

June had a lean and fragile frame due to having virtually no muscle mass and severe osteoporosis, which, among other life-impacting challenges, caused deformity in her hands, conditions known as Bouchard's nodes and Heberden's nodes. June's many health conditions were made worse by June's decades-long use of the high-powered corticosteroids she was taking to help lessen the pain of her chronic and highly debilitating rheumatoid arthritis. June also had digestive system problems as well. In addition to contributing to her osteoporosis, the corticosteroids June took for decades also likely had a profound negative effect on her digestive system as synthetic steroid hormones are known to cause gastrointestinal and immune system side effects.

Alongside June's crippling and painful rheumatoid arthritis, she also had to contend with osteoporosis that left her body weak, digestive system issues, and the compounding complications her decades of synthetic corticosteroid usage had on each of these conditions. June also enjoyed a drink, usually gin, now and then, and alcohol has devastating effects on all body systems. Alcohol is especially damaging to the mind and a potent and accelerating agent of dementia, especially in the elderly. In the years leading up to the pandemic, June began exhibiting symptoms of dementia, such as being forgetful, confused, verbally violent, verbally abusive, combative, and angry with her loved ones.

In 2018 I noticed that occasionally my Aunt June's behavior toward me was different. Sometimes she would forget important things, like informing me that the place we agreed to meet for brunch had changed at the last minute, and I was left alone at the original restaurant waiting for June and Lindsey to arrive. When I told June how hurt I was that she forgot to inform me of these changes and asked her why I wasn't notified of the new location, she became frustrated, defensive, and combative toward me. June refused to acknowledge any miscommunication on her end and insisted that the error must have been mine. I did not know, back in 2018, that my Aunt's response to being confronted with the consequences of her forgetfulness was typical for those experiencing cognitive decline. I brushed these early occurrences off, thinking that maybe my Aunt's behavior was due to some stress in her life I didn't know about. At the time, I knew very little about dementia and thus had no other way to explain these sparse but noticeable changes in her behavior.

I was invited to spend Hanukkah with June and Lindsey in 2019, but I was attending a work conference in Orlando, Florida, and couldn't make it that year. While attending that conference, I spoke with my Aunt June on the phone, and during that phone conversation, it became very clear to me that there was something incredibly wrong with June's mental health. We talked about spending time together for the holidays, and June quickly became verbally violent, abusive, combative, and angry with me. My Aunt said very hurtful things to me in a crass tone and used harsh words I'd never heard her use before; it was surreal, almost like she was talking to someone else, someone she strongly disliked. My Aunt June seemed to confuse me with my mother, with whom neither of us had a close relationship nor fond memories. After that unsettling phone conversation with my Aunt June, I called my Cousin Lindsey. I explained to Lindsey what happened. Lindsey wasn't at all surprised. In truth, I was the one who was surprised when Lindsey told me that her mother had been behaving that way for a while and that her mother sometimes even behaved that way toward her. I was shocked. I asked Lindsey if she knew why her mother did these things, but Lindsey said she did not know. Lindsey said she just tried not to let the things her mother sometimes said to her bother her. We both agreed June's behavior was not normal, was hurtful, and wasn't the June Bloch we knew.

On top of all of these things, June had an exceptionally sedentary and socially isolated lifestyle along with a diet rich in highly processed foods that could not have possibly met the nutritional needs that her body and mind required to function normally or to give her body the fuel it needed to have a fighting chance at helping her heal from the many illnesses that effected her overall quality of life.

4. STATEMENT ON JUNE BLOCH'S FINAL YEARS

In June's final years, it is very likely that her caretakers, Lindsey Bloch, and Jonathan Poritsky, were the only people she had much or any physical access to other than perhaps the occasional medical personnel she interacted with through scheduled appointments.

The more I think of what the quality of life was for my Aunt in her final years of life and what things must have been like for her, the sadder I become, and the more I wish Lindsey had called me to help care for June so that I could have provided my Aunt with some additional comfort and social interaction.

I am a trained SAFE Alliance Senior Sexual Assault Advocate (now retired from that role). In 2020, I became a trained Hospice Austin volunteer patient caregiver and family respite specialist (click here to view supporting documentation). Through my personal life experiences and the people and organizations I choose to work with, I am no stranger to virtually any form of abuse and manipulation. I consider it a privilege and a sacred higher calling to help people through the most painful and scariest times of their lives. I love comforting those who need it most and assisting people to overcome or persevere their darkensses to find peace and live healthier, happier, and more fulfilling lives. Helping others in these ways is a calling I have chosen to dedicate my life to, for I am currently forming my nonprofit organization, the Wanderer's Way Foundation.

As a SAFE Alliance volunteer, it is my job to recognize all forms of abuse and manipulation, protect the victims of abuse, fight against abuse, help the abused and manipulated understand and heal from their abuses, and be a voice for those who, for whatever reason, are either not heard or have been silenced – like my Aunt June. As a hospice worker, it is my role to provide the caregivers of the dying elderly a break now and then and to sit with, assist, connect with, and brighten the days of dying hospice patients, many of whom suffer from some form of dementia – like my Aunt June. Dementia is, unfortunately, a pervasive and harsh reality for the older generations. Thus all hospice care workers receive training to recognize and compassionately handle so those with dementia so that we don't project our frustrations or our hurts and fears onto those who are already suffering enough from cognitive decline.

I could have helped Lindsey and Jonathan and been there to protect and provide for my Aunt June, but Lindsey did not inform me about anything she and her mother were experiencing. Lindsey didn't even tell me that her mother was critically ill and on her deathbed in the hospital.

5. SUSPICIONS, CONCERNS, AND WILL CONTEST

Part 1: Suspicions and Concerns

At first, I couldn't understand why Lindsey would do such a thing, and then later, why she avoided telling me anything about the estate or probate proceedings, even when I asked her about these things directly. I couldn't understand why Lindsey wouldn't let me help her pack up her mother's house or why she wouldn't work with me to schedule a time for me to come by June's house to collect my personal belongings, which, to my knowledge, are still at June's house (click here to view supporting documentation).

But now, after noticing that Lindsey used this vulnerable this time in June's life to transfer more than a million dollars worth of assets into her name on 09-JUNE-2021(click here to view supporting documentation), then later that year used that same transferred asset to secure a half-million dollar loan on 27-DEC-2021 (click here to view supporting documentation), and also assisted her aging, physically incapacitated, mentally diminished, and wholly dependant mother in drafting a new 2021 will on 15-SEPT-2021 (click here to view supporting documentation), that excluded me entirely, a will that does not even mention me in the "Statement As To Family" section, nor anywhere else. And yet, this new 2021 will, along with the transference of assets, which, in my opinion, occurred through undue influence, all appear to be examples of acts of financial abuse of my Aunt June that were planned and executed by my cousin Lindsey Bloch to the substantial economic benefit of Lindsey.

! For more information about the transference of assets mentioned in the paragraph above, see Section 6: June Bloch's Real Property Assets Found Through the Public Record, "5704 Trailridge Drive, Austin, TX 78731."

Part 2: Will Contest

June Bloch's new 2021 will does not list or provide the names of any direct beneficiaries. Not even Lindsey is listed, by name, as a beneficiary of June's estate. The only beneficiaries listed by name in June's new 2021 will are her contingent beneficiaries. Notably, my name is also absent from the contingent beneficiaries section of this new 2021 will.

Instead, this new 2021 will invokes "per stirpes." Per my laymen's research, "per stirpes" in some legal circles seems to be an outdated legal term that tends to complicate, rather than simply, many estate proceedings. The only aspect of my independent research into the use of "per stirpes" that the legal community agrees on is that "per stirpes" denotes the even distribution of the estate amongst the primary beneficiaries. However, concerning "family" in estate law, there seems to be no one clear, all-inclusive, and community-accepted legal definition of "family" or "immediate family," and because of this, many estate law pundits appear to have different ideas on how to legally define the beneficial family members of a will, especially in situations where (1) family structures and family roles deviate from social ideal/norm, or where a will is either (2) contested, (3) incomplete/misleading, or (4) vague, like my Aunt's new 2021 will, which is all these.

- The structure of my family and the roles the individuals played in my family deviates from the social ideal/norm. While I am Jeff and June Bloch's niece and Lindsey Bloch's first cousin, our families are incredibly small. Due to that and the severe dysfunction of my parents and other family members, with whom Lindsey and I are both genetically related, Jeff and June were parental figures and caretakers of mine, and Lindsey is the closest thing I will ever have to a sibling.
- June Bloch's new 2021 will is contested, as I am contesting it.
- June Bloch's new 2021 will is incomplete/misleading because its "Statement As To Family" is incomplete and thus misleading, as it does not mention me.
- June Bloch's new 2021 will is vague because it does not directly provide the actual names of any specific primary beneficiaries.

I maintain that Lindsey Bloch and I, Jaden Riley, are June Bloch's only serving family members and that we are both the intended and lawful primary beneficiaries of June Bloch's estate. I'd like the Court to consider the information I have provided in this section and Sections 1, 3, and 4 to help determine the rightful and legal primary beneficiaries of June's estate and what percentage of the estate each beneficiary is entitled to.

Furthermore, I found this information regarding contesting a "per stirpes" will:

You can contest a will that contains per stirpes distributions if you have legal grounds to do so, but you cannot contest the use of per stirpes distributions in a will just because you do not like the outcome. Under the Texas Estates Code, an interested party can file a lawsuit to contest the validity of a will within two years of the will being admitted into probate. Some common reasons a will can be contested include:

- Improper execution of the will or lack of formalities
- Undue influence or coercion
- Fraud or forgery
- Lack of testamentary capacity
- Revocation

! The legal interpretation of family and "per stirpes" is relevant to Section 10: Suggestions of Possible Ways to Restore Balance and Bring Fair Resolution, Part 2: Regarding the Will.

  - 100% of property ownership was transferred to Lindsey Bloch from June Bloch.

  - This instrument of conveyance transferred Lindsey Bloch's 100% ownership of the property to 50%-50% joint property ownership between Lindsey Bloch and her husband, Jonathan Poritsky.
- 2021-DEC Home Equity Loan
  - A home equity loan for $498,000 was issued to borrowers Lindsey Bloch and her husband, Jonathan Poritsky.

- In Dec 2021, Jonathan Poritsky finally became a 50% owner of the house he has lived in since 2016. In addition to acquiring 50% ownership of the property, he became legally liable for 50% of the $498,000 of borrowed debt for which the property is listed as the first lien collateral.
- Lindsey's income is substantially less than her husband, Jonathan Poritsky's. Even with 100% ownership of the property, I do not believe her income, work history, and existing debt obligations would have permitted my Cousin to qualify for a $498,000 loan without the assistance of her husband. However, Jonathan's income, stable job history, and 50% ownership of a property valued at more than $1,000,000 was sufficient for the couple to qualify for this loan. To secure a $498,000 home equity loan, Lindsey first had to acquire ownership of the house from her mother and then grant her husband, Jonathan Poritsky, 50% ownership of the property.

9. WHAT I HOPE TO ACHIEVE THROUGH CONTACTING THE PROBATE COURT

I hope that by notifying the Travis County Probate Court of my concerns, the Court will take the time to review the information that I have provided through my investigation into the public record and also investigate my suspicions of illegal activity committed by Lindsey Bloch and her husband, Jonathan Poritsky.

Supposing the Probate Court, or any other court of law, finds Lindsey Bloch or her husband, Jonathan Poritsky, liable for crimes against my Aunt or the illegal management of her estate, given that this is a genuine possibility - I ask that the Travis County Probate Court help my family members and me avoid the unpleasant and drawn-out process of litigation, which will include a lengthy and expensive period of discovery to unearth the facts of June's later years of life, June's medical history from age 65 through 71, including an investigation into the quality-of-care Lindsey Bloch and Jonathan Poritsky provided my Aunt June, as well as the financial history and activities of both Lindsey Bloch and Jonathan Poritsky, especially in the years leading up to June's death and months immediately after her death.

To help my family members and me avoid these circumstances, I ask that the Travis Probate Court be the one to bring Justice to all aspects related to my Aunt June's passing so that all of these issues can be put behind us as swiftly as possible allowing everyone involved to move on with their lives sooner rather than later. A prolonged private attorney legal battle will only deepen the rift between members of a family that, through these circumstances, has already been irreparably damaged.

I would like the help of the Travis County probate court to bring clarity, Justice, balance, peace, and closure to the circumstances mentioned in this email. I hope that the authorities of the Travis County Probate court will be able to (1) identify and return any assets illegally transferred out of my Aunt's estate AND (2) investigate the financial transactions of the estate to determine if there has been a breach of fiduciary duty, AND (3) if there has been a breach of fiduciary duty, I request that the Court replace the existing executor with a professional fiduciary to manage my Aunt's estate properly, AND (4) determine who the legal beneficiaries of my Aunt's estate are, AND (5) what percentage of of the estate each beneficiary is fairly and legally entitled to.

10. SUGGESTIONS ON POSSIBLE WAYS TO BRING FAIRNESS, BALANCE, AND JUSTICE

I have given a great many things a lot of thought. Below are my ideas on how the Probate Court could bring fairness, balance, and Justice to the issues. I am unsure of what powers and influence the Probate Court possesses. These are only suggestions; I will humbly accept and adhere to whatever a court of law deems legal and fair.

My recommendations of possible actions the Court could take, providing my suggestions are within the confines of the statute, within the powers of the Probate Court, and providing that the Court also deems my recommendations to be fair and just to help my family and me avoid litigation and discovery and to address all outstanding concerns regarding my suspicions of illegalities of (1) elder abuse, (2) undue influence, (3) probate fraud, and breach of fiduciary duty for which June's caretakers, Lindsey Bloch and Jonathan Poritsky are potentially liable for:

(1) REGARDING TRANSFERRED ASSETS: Reverse the transference of assets removed from June Bloch's estate and return them to the estate by (a) nullifying the June 2021 Special Warranty Deed in which June transferred 100% ownership of an asset exceeding one million dollars in value to her daughter and primary caretaker Lindsey Bloch, AND(b) do the same for any similar transference of assets which may have occurred, AND (c) return this asset to my Aunt June's estate,

(2) REGARDING THE WILL: Determine the fair and legal beneficiaries of June's estate and what percentage of the estate they are entitled to by either (a) electing to honor June's new 2021 and its "per stirpes" equal distribution of assets amongst the primary beneficiaries of a will, but legally declare that June Bloch's rightful and legal primary beneficiaries are BOTH (i) Lindsey Bloch AND (ii) Jaden Riley, OR (b) some other fair, legal, and just course of resolution as determined by the Court. ---- ! I'd like the Court to consider the information I have provided in Sections 1, 3, 4, and 5.2 to help determine the rightful and legal primary beneficiaries of Junes' estate and what percentage of the estate each beneficiary is entitled to.

(3) REGARDING FIDUCIARY DUTIES: Replace the existing executor with a professional fiduciary to manage my Aunt's estate properly. Though I have no proof, I suspect that my Cousin and active executor, Lindsey Bloch, based on her recent actions and long-standing history with managing money, may not possess the integrity of character or financial acumen to legally and properly manage the financial matters associated with my Aunt's estate.
